INTRODUCTION

With growing global competition, Quality Management has been recognized as one of the core competences of all organizations. Quality management principles provide understanding of and guidance on the application of Quality Management. The IS/ISO 10015 Quality Standard for Training has specifically been developed for the quality assurance aspect of managing the training function within organizations. The IS/ISO 10015 based quality assurance system is here to safeguard the resources invested by the organizations in acquiring know-how and securing talents through training.

OBJECTIVE

To sensitize the stake holding organizations, such as ministries, the private and public training providers, companies and chambers/employer organizations, to the need for quality management in the process of skill development and in the effective management development

To introduce and provide initial exposure to selected target groups, who are responsible for the TVET and the quality of workforce, of the IS/ISO 10015 Quality Standard for Training and its application to the organizations.

To provide more in-depth understanding of the IS/ISO 10015 system specifications through a first hand experience.
